

A close-up photograph of a rocky streambed. The foreground is dominated by large, dark, textured rocks in shades of brown, grey, and black. In the background, water flows over a similar rocky surface, creating a soft, blurred effect with some light reflections. The overall scene is natural and somewhat somber, fitting the biblical text overlaid on it.

Ezekiel 16:40 They shall also bring up a company against thee, and they shall stone thee with stones, and thrust thee through with their swords.